

ArtWorks, a program of the Partners in Education Foundation for the Santa Fe Public Schools, seeks to make the arts personally meaningful to public school students and teachers through an integrated program of art-making, viewing live performances and exhibits, and achieving understanding through inquiry and reflection.

ArtWorks pairs professional Teaching Artists with local arts institutions and public school classrooms in a series of inquiry-driven workshops in the artistic disciplines of visual art, music, theater, dance and poetry.

The ArtWorks Works! Student Art Exhibition features over 100 works of art by Santa Fe Public School students from El Camino Real Academy, Gonzales Community School, Mandela International Magnet School, Nava Elementary School and Nina Otero Community School.

Cover art by Itzel Espino, 8th grade, Gonzales Community School, Teacher: Julia Smith. Created during an ArtWorks workshop and visit to the Wheelwright Museum of the American Indian.

The ArtWorks program is generously supported by the City of Santa Fe Arts and Culture Department, New Mexico Arts, the National Endowment for the Arts, the Santa Fe Community Foundation, the Melville Hankins Family Foundation, the Susan K. Black Foundation and many individual donors.
